Leadership is Light for a World in Darkness

Vol. 18 Number 45
November 11, 2018

“His master said to him, well done, good and faithful servant. You were faithful with a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master.” Matt. 25:23

There is no doubt in my mind that we all as individuals will give an account for the way we spend the life God gave us. Unfortunately, many people fail to recognize that the life we have was given to us by God. The people who never search the scriptures or more simply, who never ask God to make known His truth, will live in darkness until the day they die. This sad truth should compel Christians to determine how we can interrupt the eternal destiny of people who are on a collision course with God. One they cannot win. Are we broken by this condition so many people are subjected to only because the world (corrupt spiritual forces) is successfully deceiving those who don't know about the love and grace of the Lord Jesus Christ?

In spite of man's general disregard for the consequences of living life without the saving grace of God, should Christians be in the position to help awaken the lost from their impending plight of condemnation (Heb. 9:14)? Wisdom in direct connection to Christ-likeness demands that all Christians live dynamic lives that can expose the lost to the light of truth. The simple fact is that people “go along to just get along”. People follow the popular crowds. They do this to be accepted and because they believe they will be all alone if they pursue the unpopular path. We can observe this in society every day. The social trends, the political views, and perspectives about God and religion are all affected by how the world portrays reality. For example, the clothes we buy are intended to make a fashion statement, just like our hair dues. The Politian's we vote for suggest the crowd we agree with or follow. And if God is not popular, because people want to do as they please, without being accountable to His truth, then people will respond to the Bible as if it's just another book imposed on them.

Christians who view themselves as leaders by way of example, in the church and in the world, possess God's power to impact and shape human circumstances with wisdom and knowledge. Leaders are the ones who stand up for holiness, righteousness, and truth. They are not perfect people, but they are clearly God's people. They are mature enough to stay focused on God's will spiritually, morally, and ethically. Only when people see the beauty of Christian leadership can they find reason to process truth without the interruption of sinister forces. Christians as leaders are vital to God's plan to save lost souls (Mk. 10:45). We as Christians cannot describe ourselves as faithful unless we are willing to wear the shoes of leadership. God has given us the wisdom and knowledge in His word to incorporate it in every facet of our life experience. It's just like those who were given talents to multiply when their master returned. He will look into our eyes, each one of us individually, and He will explore our faithfulness to the intentions of His son, Jesus Christ. At that moment our sincerity to our relationship with Christ will reveal itself. Will you be among those the Lord will welcome into his eternal presences? Now is the time to determine your destiny with Him.
